Kindi

I am hope to be done with the harvest today. I'm so tired carrying my food sack feels like a burden.

Akko

Mine feels as though it weighs a ton.

They exchange glances, stop walking and look inside their food sacks.

Kindi

I have two extra water gourds and... a cushion!

Akko

I have more yam fu-fu and corn fo-do than four men can eat. Odd. What was Bushani thinking?

Kindi

What's truly odd is that now that I have extra to give her, my wife begs me to give her nothing.

Akko

My wife also. In fact, she thinks that I am looking for a second wife.

Kindi

So that is where Ezinma got the notion about second wives. She heard it from your wife.

Akko

You cannot say so with conviction. It could have been the other way around.

Kindi

What would I do with a second wife, man! The children I have from this wife fills every space in our dwelling. What I need is more rooms, one for overflowing children and another for myself! But what would you know about that with only two children from your wife in all these many years.

Akko

And you are saying what?

Kindi

I am saying that if anyone needs a second wife, it is you, my friend.

Akko

Do you question my wife's womanly? What business is it of yours how many children I have!

Kindi

If you are happy with only two children, we have no quarrel.

Akko

Then we have no quarrel.

Kindi

What I would like to know is why our wives have raised these subjects.

Akko

Who can understand the mind of a woman.
